REVISING POSTAL LAWS

A New Code Awaiting Action by Congress.

Provisions of the Rules of Conduct for the Civil Administration of the Postoffice Department Rearranged by Harrison J. Barrett-Few Radical Changes in Contemplation

One of the topics most discussed in the Postoffice Department is the proposed revision and codification of the laws relating to the civil administration of the Postoffice Department and the postal service. A revision and codification of these laws has been prepared by Harrison J. Barrett, law clerk of the department, and was submitted to the Committee on Postoffices and Post Roads of the House of Repreentatives at the last session, but the bill which was introduced embodying the work of Mr. Barrett, though favorably reported, was not taken up for consideration. This Mr. Loud, Chairman of the House Committee on Postoffices and Post Roads, says will be done early in the short session The last revision of the postal laws, both civil and criminal, was made by the act of June 8, 1872, which revision was incorporated, with slight changes, in the Revised Statutes. Numerous amendments to these laws and many additional provisions have been enacted by Congress. These amendments and subsequent statutes have been incorporated in the proposed revision, and where there has seemed to be a conflict between sections of the Revised Statutes, or the original act, and subsequent legislation, such alterations have been made as to reconcile the apparent differences. Changes have been made in the phraseology of existing laws for the sake of clearness or uniformity. In several instances different statutes relating to the same subject have been consolidated and proper notes have been inserted in the margin, so that these various statutes may be readily referred to in the original. The marginal notes will also indicate where the original law, or the amendments incorporated in the revision of any given section of the Revised Statutes, or of a subsequent act, can be found. the Postmaster General to issue orders forbidding the delivery, or forwarding to any foreign country, of mail matter, originating in the United States, addressed to any person or concern conducting a lottery or fraudulent enterprise, or who is en-gaged in any business for the sale of obcene literature, or articles or devices inended for indecent or immoral use. The provision relative to obscene matter is new. An extensive traffic is carried on in oscene matter, such matter being circu lated in large quantities among the young, and a number of concerns are known to be dealing in articles and devices intended for indecent and immoral use. The malling of such matter is made criminal by Section 3893 of the Revised Statutes as amended by the act of September 26, 1888, and prosecutions are instituted whenever proper evidence can be secured, but, notwithstanding, large quar'tites of obscene matter and articles for indecent use pass through the mails, and it is believed that a provision authorizing the Postmaster General to direct the return to the writers' proposed to be vested in him by section 223, relative to the payment of money orders to such persons or concerns, will result in reducing to the minimum the use of the mails for these improper purposes. Section 316 of the proposed code provides for payment for transportation of foreign mails. The existing statute provides that United States steamships shall receive on the mail transported are approximately as the content of the content o vides that United States steamships shall receive on the mail transported any sum not exceeding the sea and inland postage, and foreign steamships or sailing vessels not exceeding sea postage. In view of the provisions of the International Postal Convention relative to the transportation of the mails between the different countries of the union, and the present rates of postage, the term "sea postage" has no meaning, and the section as proposed is merely to conform to the existing practice. Under the new code the Postmaster General is authorized to fine foreign mail contractors for delay, failure to perform trips, and for damage to the mails while READING, Pa., June 23.—All the arrangements for his own funeral were made by Peter H. Houck, of Oley, before he died a few days ago. He was buried Thursday, in a grave the site of which he selected and which was dug by men of his own choosing. The pallbearers, named by him, were all born in the same year as he, 1842, and had been his lifelong companions.

There was rescued from the moldering heaps yesterday a history of the discovery of gold at Cape Nome is the correct and the only truthful account of the discovery of gold at Cape Nome is the correct and the only truthful account ever written. This account is rouched for by over 300 miners and claim-owners, both in the Cape Nome, Eldorado, and Blake Mining districts."

It is recited that in the summer of 1837 Prof. D. B. Libbey, Capt. A. P. Mendaunt, L. F. Melsing, and H. L. Blake left San Francisco on board the steamer North Pork bound for Golofnin Bay. One of this party wrote:

Libbey was a member of the party sent to Port Clarence, whence the proposed line was to begin, thence to run over the mountains to Golofnin Bay thence via the coast to St. Michael and from thence down to the United States.

"While the party was surveying between Port Clarence and Golofnin Bay they employed many natives and traveled over much rich country. The natives, upon several occasions, brought into the party very rich samples of eve such as sliver, lead, and gold, but the survey party could never induce them to tell where the specimens had been found. They intended to go in search of this gold the first chance they got, but the company suddenly abandoned the project, sent a vessel to Port Clarence, and took the project, sent a vessel to Port Clarence, and took the party tage to the party to prospect, reported that he had found nothing, whereas he had, and then returned to Sweden circulating the news and bringing over men to stake out claims.
